

4 ANGLES · 12 AD CREATIVES · 1 PRODUCT

Four ways to sell one set.

Four distinct creative angles for the Drams for the Tartan Army set collection. Built to test against each other and find the highest-ROAS angle, then scale the winner. For Wolfburn team review and sign-off before we set up in Meta Ads Manager.

WHAT'S IN THIS DOCUMENT

Four ad-set angles for the set collection. Angle A · The Moment leads on the World Cup. Angle B · The Craft leads on heritage and place. Angle C · The Scarcity leads on the limited release. Angle D · The Gift leads on the gifting and Father's Day moment. Each angle has 3 creatives (static hero, carousel, reel). All four run against each other on a small test budget for 5-7 days, the winner takes the bulk of the spend.

< STRATEGY PIVOT · 27 MAY

One product, four angles.

Following review with the Wolfburn team, we are dropping the individual-bottle campaigns and focusing all paid spend on the Drams for the Tartan Army set. The data has been clear: customers are buying the collection, not the individual bottles. The campaign architecture simplifies to one product, multiple creative angles, one budget pool.

This document is for the Wolfburn team to review and approve the copy before we set up the campaigns in Meta. The approval checklist sits at the bottom of the document.

All four angles share targeting, audiences, and budget pool. The testing protocol below tells the team how we'll pick the winner.

RUN ORDER + APPROVAL

A

ANGLE A • THE MOMENT

The Moment.

Lead on the 2026 World Cup itself. The 28-year wait, the three matches, the set as the answer. For the Scottish football core and the UK whisky audience that crosses over into it.

HOOK • THE LEAD IDEA

"Scotland's first World Cup in 28 years. We made the set for it."

The Wolfburn set is positioned as the tournament artefact — the thing every household watching Scotland's group stage should have on the side table. Tone is direct, warm, dry-Scottish. Builds on the campaign anchor "Mibbe aye, mibbe no."

B

ANGLE B • THE CRAFT

The Craft.

Lead on Thurso, the distillery, the hand-bottled set. Editorial register, Macallan/Hennessy heritage feel. For the international whisky audience, Paris and US, the discerning collector.

HOOK • THE LEAD IDEA

"Hand-bottled at the very top edge of Scotland."

The Wolfburn set is positioned as a craft release first, a football product second. The football is the occasion, not the lead. Tonal reference: Macallan Distil Your World, Dalmore King Alexander. For the international whisky shopper who responds to provenance and place over event marketing.

ANGLE C · THE SCARCITY

The Scarcity.

Lead on "we won't repeat the summer." Limited release, single allocation, collector framing. For limited-edition buyers and whisky collectors who respond to scarcity cues.

HOOK · THE LEAD IDEA

"When the set is gone, the set is gone."

The Wolfburn set is positioned as a collector's release that will not be repeated. The football is the occasion that justifies the limited edition. Tonal reference: limited-release whisky drops, Springbank releases, allocation-based brand communications. For the buyer who responds to "we are not making many."

D

ANGLE D • THE GIFT

The Gift.

Lead on gifting + Father's Day. The set as keepsake, as gift, as the summer's most-poured present. For the gift-buyer audience, the Father's Day shopper, the premium-gifting buyer who values presentation as much as the whisky inside.

HOOK • THE LEAD IDEA

"The summer's most-poured gift. Father's Day, sorted."

The Wolfburn set is positioned as the summer's gift of choice — for the father, the older friend, the whisky-loving relative. Father's Day (21 June this year) falls between the Morocco and Brazil matches, so the gifting hook coincides with peak campaign attention. Warm, family-led, sentimental.

Budget · test & scale

All four angles get equal share for 5 days. After day 5 we kill the bottom 2 and scale the top 2 for the rest of the tournament window.

PHASE 1 · THE TEST (DAYS 1-5)

- £25/day total · split equally across 4 ad sets via CBO (algo distributes based on early performance)
- ~£6.25/day per angle as the soft floor
- 5-day test gives us ~£125 total spend · enough volume to call winners at our typical conversion rate

PHASE 2 · SCALE (DAY 6 ONWARDS)

- Pause the 2 lowest-ROAS ad sets
- Reallocate the full £25/day to the top 2 winners · ~£12.50/day each
- Refresh creative every 7 days within those top 2 to avoid fatigue
- Run continuously through tournament window and beyond

PHASE 3 · POST-TOURNAMENT (26 JUN ONWARDS)

- Continue running winning angle(s) at £25/day until collection sells through
- Switch CTA from "Reserve" to "Shop Now" once on storefront
- Add seasonal retargeting overlays (e.g., "Last chance · Father's Day")
